

ABSTRACT

In a BJT, the extrinsic base to collector capacitance is reduced by forming a lateral trench between the extrinsic base region and collector. This is typically done by using 5 an anisotropic wet etch process in a $\langle 110 \rangle$ direction of a $\langle 100 \rangle$ orientation wafer.